

Rawalian Students Research Society

Medical research, perhaps, is one of the most daunting terminologies for a medical student. RSRS works on a vision to make this cumbersome process of research approachable and inclusive for the students. From holding Webinars and seminars for research methodology and data analysis to providing research mentors for freshly admitted medical students, RSRS has been incessantly working to inculcate the young aspirant researchers with the knowledge and skills they need to become future leaders in the world of academia and research. With regularly held Conferences and Symposia, where keynote and influential speakers from different specialties are invited, we aim to equip the young student students with quality resources and mentors, that can help them pave their way in this learning journey.
